On the outbreak of war in 1914, two battalions were recruited from among the population of the "Old Toronto." With the creation of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, a third battalion was raised in 1915. The first battalion served in France and Belgium during the First World War, as part of the 6th (Service) Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force. The second and third battalions of the regiment served in the Sinai and Palestine Campaign of the Second World War. The fourth battalion of the regiment served in the Second World War in the Western Desert. After the war, the regiment was re-established in 1945 as a reserve unit. It was disbanded in 1947, although its members were not released from the army until 1950. First World War The Toronto Black Watch was part of the 6th (Service) Battalion, CEF which was part of the 1st Brigade, 2nd Canadian Division which was raised in July 1914. The battalion was composed of part-time soldiers who were mobilized on the outbreak of the First World War. The battalion was mobilized on 28 August 1914 for service in the Great War and the battalion was given the following composition on that day: The Battalion left Toronto on 17 September 1914 and disembarked in England on 25 September 1914. After training in England, the battalion landed at Le Havre, France on 1 November 1914 and moved to the trenches at Hill 60 on 10 November 1914. After a period of trench warfare, the battalion was moved to the Ypres Salient on 23 May 1915.

Art Project for Firefox is a browser extension for Firefox that helps to discover and experience the artistic mind at work. With the extension, you get a new way of browsing your favorite websites. Unlike your browser's default tabs, Art Project for Firefox's tabs give you a glimpse of the creative world of a given artist. The project reveals contemporary artists and historic masters like Leonardo da Vinci, Vincent Van Gogh, and Albert Einstein, as well as famous paintings like The Girl with the Pearl Earring, The Last Supper, The Birth of Venus, and much more. The extension takes into consideration the type of artist you follow, by bringing out a selection of artworks from artists who frequently collaborate with each other, such as Pierre-Auguste Renoir and Edgar Degas. A new tab with the most current artwork opens up when you visit a website. Art Project for Firefox makes it easy to explore a specific artist by using a zoomable, clickable image map that works on any kind of device, including mobiles and tablets. Art Project for Firefox works offline and with no cost. A free, high-resolution image of the latest artwork opens automatically each time you visit a website you follow. It's so easy to use, you don't even need to install anything. Just install Art Project for Firefox, activate it, and your new tabs will be ready to use. [caption id="attachment_8391" align="alignleft" width="" class="alignleft" caption=""] (Image: Screenshot / TechCrunch)[/caption] Installs in seconds To be honest, Art Project for Firefox, as it is now, is a mere browser extension which is not made with any integration to the browser. Nonetheless, we appreciate how easy and straightforward the app is, because it does not require any installation and its basic functions are, as mentioned before, to keep the new tab's contents interesting by presenting the best quality possible. Furthermore, the tool is a Firefox add-on, which is very convenient as you will not have to go through several steps to install it as you would do for a Chrome or Safari add-on. As you can see, it is a very straightforward add-on, as it doesn't require any customization to get started, and the installation process is a cinch. In

What's New In?

Brings visual masterpieces right within Firefox's new tabs Given the add-on's specific, you should expect a hassle-free installation process, with no icon whatsoever being placed in the toolbar. That is because the app does not come with any customization options and is simplistic from beginning to end. However, its very subtlety may be to the liking of users who want to embellish their browser without making it feel crowded, and that is precisely what Art Project for Firefox can do. As for the origins of this little tool, you may want to know that it is based on Google Art Project extension, which resembles in purpose since it also brings out masterpieces from both classic and contemporary artists. That's really boring 5 By Udellan Art Project for Firefox is a great app to view art without being a professional, but I'm a fan of browsing the web for quality art. If you're really an art fan this is an app worth having. I'm sure there are a lot of other apps with similar features, but I'm not really familiar with most of them, but I think it is a great app. Art Project for Firefox 4 By lula _____ I really like how easy this app is to use and browse. I really like the way it looks and feels. It has a lot of excellent selections. It took me about 5 minutes to install, and I already love it. Very well done. A little more functionality would be nice, like showing more categories, but I do not understand why that would be a bad thing. It is actually a good thing to have more options. I am a fan. Art Project for Firefox 4 By MM10S Art Project for Firefox is a good way to view Art, especially if you are like me and only use Firefox as your browser. I like that you can click the description of the art for more information. I would like it if you could customize the gallery. I would like to have it just like Google Art Project only with Art Project for Firefox. Please add more art and show it in more categories. It is easy to use and has a lot of excellent choices. Art Project for Firefox 5 By stttt It is very easy to use Art Project for Firefox. The app is free and it is very minimal. It has a beautiful art section and is very easy to navigate. I like the app and will keep using it. It has a lot of great art to browse. There is more to explore. I think Art Project for Firefox needs a little more functionality. It is difficult to browse more categories. Art Project for Firefox 3 By roafy Art Project for Firefox is a great app, but it is very limited. It could be a lot more useful. I think
