The AUTOPOL TECHNOLOGY is composed of a light source, a specific filter, a lens system, a photodiode array detector and software for the acquisition and calculation of the results, in accordance with FDA regulations. The AUTOPOL is a quick and easy instrument for measuring the refractive index of sugar solutions down to 0.2% sucrose. The AUTOPOL is a quick and easy instrument for measuring the refractive index of sugar solutions down to 0.2% sucrose. Polarimeters are chemical balances that measure optical rotations. The most common application of these instruments is to measure the optical rotation (or polarimetry) of solvents in crystal analysis. It can also be used for water analysis, aqueous solutions, mixed phases or solids. A polarimeter is an instrument used to measure the polarization of a light beam in one or more directions. A polarimeter is an instrument used to measure the polarization of a light beam in one or more directions. This is basically one that measures the speed at which the magnetization flips in a sample. It can be used to measure the various properties of the magnetic material. It is basically one that measures the speed at which the magnetization flips in a sample. This is basically one that measures the speed at which the magnetization flips in a sample. The magnetization of the electrons in the magnetic material always want to align themselves to the external magnetic field. Magnetoresistance is the effect of changing the direction of the magnetic field. Magnetoresistance is the effect of changing the direction of the magnetic field. This is mainly used to measure the resistivity of the material. This is mainly used to measure the resistivity of the material. The device includes six collection channels with inbuilt calibration, and a two channel laser is provided for in-air calibration. Fluidity can be printed on powder, wax or gel. This is a device that measures the flow rate. A device that measures the flow rate. A co-polarising system uses two polarizers, the first one oriented vertically and the second one horizontally. A co-polarising system uses two polarizers.
