In 2010, Autodesk released an online tools platform (Autodesk Online Labs) to allow sharing of professional CAD tasks and workflows. The platform provides a set of ready-to-run solutions for common tasks, like creating linear and angular dimensions or creating 2D floor plans. Users can access the platform using their AutoCAD license or as a free trial, and upload their drawings and drawings created with a number of other CAD software packages. The first AutoCAD release in 1994 was certified on Microsoft
