AutoBots was the first 2D platformer online (before BigScreen). First released as a freeware version on September 20, 2002, AutoBots has become a cult classic game and one of the most popular online PC games of all time. AutoBots is a platform game in which the player character is an unseen yet sentient bipedal robot, set in a low-grav environment. The game was originally released in 2002 as a freeware game for Microsoft Windows and is still offered as such. However, the code of the original game is no longer available, so the latest version of the game is largely based on the remakes, ports, and clones of the game. The playing area is continuous, and the player may move back and forth across terrain and platform sections with no loading. Since 1999, several PC and console versions have been released with varying additions and enhancements. There are two main parts to the AutoBots series. The original game, which remains somewhat of a cult classic, is a platformer game where the player chooses from twenty robots with varying skills. The second part, AutoPlay, was released for Game Boy Color and Nintendo DS in 2002. One of the most unique features of the game is that the player controls the game through subtitles. Text, and even spoken dialog, is displayed as subtitles throughout the play area as the robot interacts with the player. The player only has to click on options or items shown as subtitles, such as "Jump", "Pick Up Ball", or "Pick Up Ball With Boom-Up". Brain (BrainShark), the brain behind WallBreakers is in a dilemma. Also, if you are paid USD/GBP/EUR, etc., because the main version of the game is only the uncapped version, so you are going to work hard for a long time, and it's scary. It's a hack APK has been tested and verified by some people. Allow me to be honest, but the experience is a little bit overwhelming. The game itself is a bad mess of game mechanics and grind, which gets so expensive in the end. If you are looking to exploit it on more than one account, it's definitely the wrong place to do that. You need several accounts just so that you can stay on for a long time to wear down the players in the game, and on top of it all, the matches are ugly, there's a weird physics, you don't have an armor, and you just get killed. If this is a "pay to win" game, then we have a problem. Two accounts is also not enough because if you want to use them for PvP, they will be banned. And I think I get the conclusion of the game: it's so miserable that this is likely only for multiplayer games. Because there is nothing that I recommend using a game that allows you to share and upload the data of their players or anything of that kind in the first place. I am testing the program to get my own data and if it's in the EU, then I would be so upset if I find out that there is a hacker who ripped off my data.
